THE CURRICULUM: Learning throughout the school is focused around the creative curriculum. Science, technology, engineering and maths (STEM) are embedded into our curriculum as are thinking skills and philosophy for children (P4C). The curriculum is diverse and through our Maths+ programme, linked to STEM, meets the demands of an ever-changing technological world. Specialist subjects are taught in well-resourced rooms and we teach a diverse range of subjects. Our extracurricular programme is extensive and includes chess, uniquely integrated into the school day with sessions every morning. 'The school sets out to provide a creative curriculum, but is well ahead of the curve at primary level in putting STEM subjects at the heart of the maths curriculum.' 'Chess is huge here, deliberately encouraged to develop logical thinking.' Good Schools Guide, October 2014.

GAMES & THE ARTS: We compete against other schools in matches and tournaments and we attend the Independent Schools Association competitions. Sports include football, tag rugby, cricket, netball, rounders, swimming, dance, tennis and fencing.

Children can choose to learn a wide range of instruments: piano, violin, guitar and drums, as well as join the school choir and orchestra. LAMDA lessons are popular where drama skills are developed. Music, art and drama are showcased in productions throughout the year.

PASTORAL CARE: Excellent pastoral care is at the heart of Parsons Green Prep, as we create a happy and positive learning environment where children can flourish. We nurture self-confidence and through our creative lessons, ensure that children have a real enthusiasm for learning. 'The school is very clear about the standards expected of the children, and parents see pastoral care as a real strength of the school.' Good Schools Guide, October 2014.

HEAD'S PHILOSOPHY: Parsons Green Prep children are happy children, who come to school eager to learn and strive to do their best. Inspirational teachers look at each child as an individual and encourage them to reach their educational and personal potential, ready for the next stage of their education.
